TIPS FROM THE EXPERT

1 Embrace the unexpected.

“Maybe it’s by using a different wallpaper or a new coat of paint that can make the room pop with an unexpected element.”

2 Light up the room.

“Depending on the room and whether it’s logistically possible, a statement light fixture, like the candelabra chandelier we used in this space, helps elevate any room.”

3 Keep it simple.

“People underestimate how different a space can look with just updating cabinet storage. Even if you’re on a budget, some paint and a brush can make all the difference when it comes to upgrading your laundry room cabinets.”

She listens carefully to her clients by tailoring each design to their needs and situation; whether it is a large commercial project or small residential renovation.

CARLISLE DESIGN, INTERIORS, AND CONSULTING GROUP

POWDER ROOM PERFECTION

Designer, Owner: Julie Estes, Carlisle Design, Interiors, and Consulting Group
Photographer: Ashlee Zimmerman

Go big or go home is how Julie Estes, owner of Carlisle Design, Interiors, and Consulting Group, describes the inspiration for this powder room project. “It [powder room] was in the same general space as the dining room, which had navy and chartreuse details. We wanted it to be an extension of that.” Between mixing metals, a geometric light fixture, and wallpaper that complemented both the overall color palette and created movement, this lavish lavatory is not only functional, but also visually appealing.

TIPS FROM THE EXPERT

1 Don't hold back.

Find a print or even stencils that can add intrigue to your walls.

2 Don't be afraid of color.

Ask yourself, 'why not?,' and go for something bold.

3 Mix metals.

Mixing metals is trendy, and it also adds dimension and style to your space.

Carlisle Design's collaborative and highly talented design team collectively brings to the table over 35 years of design experience. With thoughtful attention to what is important to their clients, both residential and commercial, CD utilizes design to solve problems and enhance lives through beautiful solutions. As a full service, boutique design firm, projects range from a single room revamp to management of remodels and new construction design.

Perhaps what makes Carlisle Design unique is their passion for incorporating original works of art, both vintage and commissioned, into each one of their projects. They believe each project is an opportunity to build art collections while at the same time celebrating local and regional talents. Truly, each project presents a canvas for extraordinary layers of pattern, texture and color expressed by thoughtfully selected pieces for each client.
